

Amy Clements is a current graduate from the University of Melbourne and began playing the flute at the age of 10. Playing in a large array of ensembles throughout her school years and undertaking private lessons only made her take her music career more seriously and she then began travelling from Bundaberg to Brisbane on a weekly basis to attend the Griffith University Young Conservatorium program. In 2009, she auditioned successfully out of four positions for the Western International Band Clinic held in Seattle, Washington.

Amy previously received private lessons with Jeanette Manricks, retired Principal Piccolo player for the Queensland Symphony Orchestra and is now receiving lessons from Lisa-Maree Amos, current Principal Flautist for Orchestra Victoria. Amy received her Bachelor of Music degree in 2012 and has just completed her Bachelor of Music (Honours) degree. She has played with the Melbourne Youth Orchestra, working with members from the Melbourne Symphony Orchestra and Orchestra Victoria, as Principal Flautist for the Victorian Youth Symphony Orchestra, Queensland Griffith Young Conservatorium Symphony Orchestra, Wind Symphony and Flute Ensemble as well as various ensembles with the University of Melbourne. Amy is currently working on applications for entry into a Masters of Music degree at the University of Melbourne.